Hello, Thompson School District (TSD) Families!

We hope that Spring Break has offered you some meaningful time with those you love. As we return from time away, we’re all aware that we’re living in different times.

Many have heard that Governor Polis has ordered Colorado school closures to extend from March 19-April 17. Our first goal and our best hope during this time is that all of our TSD community (students, staff, families, and community partners) remain safe and as healthy as possible. Our second goal is to help students continue their learning.

Over the course of the last few weeks, a team of district professionals have been collecting and publishing activities and content found in this website (https://tinyurl.com/w3offlg). As you spend time on the website, you’ll notice that learning activities are offered by grade and subject area. We are confident that students will find the wide variety of information and ideas interesting and helpful for learning.

Over the course of the next couple of weeks, teaching staff will be evaluating classroom instruction and determining best next steps for a more personalized educational experience. More information will be sent to you prior to that launch.

If you do not have an adequate device at home or problems with accessing the internet please click here for more information from our Innovative Technology Services Department (https://tinyurl.com/uqzh9ce).

During uncertain times, routine and structure can help young people feel cared for and safe. While this article focuses on preschool and early childhood, the ideas of creating structure and routine are important for all of us. We suggest putting a daily schedule into place for your child(ren) that creates structure, predictability, and a way for students to track their progress with academic tasks. Here’s a suggested daily schedule. Some families have found it useful to change it based on their needs.
